Dr. Lamar Dodd

Byron Reese, Georgia Writer, to Speak Here

BY ANN GOOGE

On Thursday, May 23, GSCW will have the honor of having the well-known Georgia poet and prose writer, Byron Reese, as guest speaker in chapel. This will be a special program and Mr. Reese will be given a full hour to read and talk about his poetry.

Mr. Reese, who lives on a farm out from Blairsville, Georgia is a professor at Young Harris College. Last year he was guest professor at Emory University where he conducted a night class of literature and language for adults.

Byron Reese graduated from Young Harris College and while a student there some of his poems were published in nationally circulated magazines. Now he divides his spare time between farming and writing.

Among Mr. Reese's well-known works are "Ballad of the Bones," "Bow Down in Jericho," "The Season of Flesh," "A Song of Joy and Other Poems," and The Hawk and The Sun.

He was awarded a Guggenheim Fellowship for creative writing, and it has been said that with perhaps the exception of Robert Frost, Reese is our greatest living poet.

To most of us, Byron Reese is more than just a poet, he is a Georgia poet.

GSCW Band to Present Spring Concert in May

BY CAROL JEAN FOX

The GSCW and Milledgeville Concert Band will present its spring concert May 15. The hour is 8:00 p. m. in Russell Auditorium.

The program this quarter includes a number of solos and very excellent music, some of which has been arranged for concert band and some composed expressly for performance by band.

"Pepperino" by R. M. Enders is an alto saxophone and tenor saxophone duet with band accompaniment. June Brooks, a sophomore music major will play the alto and Margaret Calhoun, a senior will play the tenor. Elizabeth Weldon, a junior music major, will be featured on the piano in "Concertino" by Mozart-Grieg.

A concerto differs from a full-fledged concerto in the shortness and conciseness of the movement. It is a piece for accompaniment. June Brooks will solo on the alto-sax in the beautiful "Ballade." It is an instrumental composition which has the effect of a narrative.

The band will play music ranging from Handel to Morton Gould. "Air and Bouree" one of a set of orchestral movement by Handel. Composed in 1717, it is scored predominantly for woodwinds. It is very delightful music. Harold Walters, a modern composer has taken well-known melodies and woven some very melodious compositions from them. The band is playing three of his arrangements at this concert.

The first, "Estrellita" is in rhumba rhythm and makes feet tap automatically. "Love's Dream After the Ball" by Alphons Czibulka, a Hungarian pianist and writer of dance music, is a waltz. The third arrangement by Harold Walters is the "American Folk Suite" which consists of four American folk tunes: "Black Is The Color of My True Love's Hair," "Yipee Ti Yo Yo," "Shenendoah," and "Erie Canal."

The Band is playing only one march, "The Minute Men's March" by J. Olivadati. "Pavanne" by Martin Gould, an excellent modern composer, should be one of the more popular numbers on the program. A pavanne was a stately processional dance performed at court by ladies in long, ornate robes and gentlemen in caps and swords. "Wedding of the Winds" by John T. Hall concludes the program.

As noted, since the band was encouraged by a successful tour last quarter, more difficult and ambitious music has been attempted. There will be no admission charges.

Dr. Manchester, Head of P. E. Dept. Will Retire After Serving 20 Years

Dr. Gertrude Manchester, Head of the Physical Education Department, is retiring at the end of this year, and plans to return to her home in Newport, Rhode Island. There she hopes to serve in some capacity of community life, renew her acquaintance with New England, and work in the fields of ornithology and music appreciation.

Flannery O'Connor To Receive The Alumnae Achievement Award Today

On May 10, at the Honor's Day program, Dr. Lee will present to Miss Flannery O'Connor the Alumnae Achievement Award. She will be recognized for "development to the point of national acclaim."

Miss O'Connor is a resident of Milledgeville. She is a writer, artist, and cartoonist. She was an honor graduate of Georgia State College for Women and received her Master's Degree from the University of Iowa.

Miss O'Connor's short stories have reached national and universal commendation. She has been recognized three times in the O'Henry Memorial Collection of Short Stories, "Wise Blood" and "A Good Man Is Hard To Find," have been printed in "Mademoiselle," "Partisan Review," "Sewanee Review," "Kenya Review," and "Harper's Bazaar."

Miss O'Connor has contributed several oil paintings but this is more in the line of a hobby.

The recognition of Miss O'Connor's success as a writer is noted in that several of her short stories are printed in European short story best sellers.

O'Connor's Exhibition On Display in Library

An exhibition of books, paintings, cartoons, reviews, clippings and photographs by and about Miss Flannery O'Connor is in the Ina Dillard Russell Library in preparation for her receiving the Distinguished Service Award from GSCW.

Miss O'Connor's creation of Hazel Motes, the frustrated Southern preacher, in the remarkable novel "Wise Blood" created a literary sensation. This novel was followed by a collection of short stories, "A Good Man Is Hard To Find," which was acclaimed by the critics.

Short stories, including those in "Harper's Bazaar," "A Late Encounter with the Enemy" and "A Temple of the Holy Ghost" and in "Mademoiselle," "The Capture" are on the display tables. The "Prize Stories" and those in "Best American Short Stories" are also on exhibit.

Miss O'Connor, who was art editor of the Colonnade and the Spectrum, while at GSCW, showed magnificent cleverness and ingenuity in her cartoons which are on review. Her stories first appeared in the college literary magazine, "The Corinthian."

Recognition of Miss O'Connor's talent is noted in the various European editions of her works.

This poem appeared in the literary magazine when she was about nineteen.

Professors internally cushioned Squirted eyedroppers of self-appraised hell
At random. And occasionally refilling.

Young ladies upholstered in plaid
Alphabetically placed in the room,
Fingers stuck deep in their ears

SELF-EXAMINATION

"To thine own self be true"—exactly what does that mean to us? Not too long ago I overheard a group of girls talking about one of their classmates. The conversation ran something along these lines: "She sure is a funny girl; she doesn't do anything like we do, wonder why she's so different? Why IS she different? Could it be because she has her own ideas and has the courage to stand up for what she believes, even though her beliefs may not be the same as everybody else?"

It's very easy to conform to the majority's way of thinking, especially in a large group when we're constantly in contact with several people. It's much easier to forget our own ideas and thoughts and to drift along agreeing with everybody, differing with few. This way we're sure of being accepted and we never have to worry about being different.

One of the hardest things in the world is to be an individualist. To be true to self when we feel that we're right is a test that really demands character. The people who can do this are the ones who have learned that they have to live with self first and foremost. They know that they can't hide the truth from themselves and they have realized that to be successful in anything they have to look their problems straight in the face and solve them the way they think they should be solved, not because that's the way somebody else does it.

We won't be right every time that we disagree with others and state our own opinions. One way of learning, though, is through our mistakes.

WELCOME TO OUR VISITORS

On behalf of the members of the Colonade staff, I wish to extend a cordial welcome to the parents, friends, and honored guests who are visiting our campus today. We look forward to this day each year because it gives us an opportunity to become acquainted with many parents of our friends, and to come to know the people who are connected with our college better.

It is indeed a pleasure to have you with us. This day has been planned exclusively for your enjoyment. The various activities scheduled for the day will serve to acquaint you with our life at GSCW, and you will see how we spend our time constructively in order to better prepare ourselves for the future.

You will see our dormitories, academic buildings, and the lovely Mansion. The exhibitions in the library of Miss Flannery O'Connor and Dr. Lamar Dodd's literary and cultural works are very interesting, and should not be forgotten in the general rush of the day's activities. There are many clubs and organizations that have special programs planned for this day, and for your enjoyment. You will see that there is seldom a moment at college that is not utilized to the fullest possible extent—even when we are not having classes!

Again, we welcome you. We hope you have a pleasant tour of our campus, and that you gain much from this day's activities.

Calling All Jessie Students

Honor council is sending out a call to all Jessie Students! Pay close attention because plans for next year are being made. These plans will affect all of us in the months to come.

On April 17th, the council began plans for next year. They met with the Junior advisors to discuss the presentation of the Honor System to next year's Freshmen. Plans for the talks in the Freshmen Dormitories were made. They also decided to meet with the Big Sisters to suggest information that might be included in the letters to the new Freshmen. A pamphlet containing the mechanics of the system will be presented to each student in the fall. Next year, these new Freshmen will invade our campus. It is up to us to aid them in becoming acquainted with the responsibilities they will share here. We can help best by example. Words can become empty without actions to back them up.

Our Honor System is an important part of campus activity. Without it, no phase of college work here would be the same. Jessie should be proud to be a part of a place where honor has top rank. We work, we play, and always Honor is there in our minds and hearts.

Realizing that honor is not something out of reach, but a basic goal of life, we should strive to perfect this ideal not only in our campus activities, but in the years that follow.

Room For Improvement

There comes a time in every person's life when she finds that her personality could stand a little improvement. Sometimes there is not a whole lot that needs to be done, and then in other cases, her whole personality may need rebuilding.

One facet of the personality that I want to elaborate on is TACT.

Suppose your roommate chooses a dress to wear on a very special date. She lovingly takes it out of the closet and presses the wrinkles out it. You might happen to notice that something about the dress doesn't look quite as it should, but you hesitate to tell her so when she is so excited about the dress. Instead of telling her that the dress is all wrong or that it doesn't do a thing for her, you suggest that she try on that blue one that really makes her eyes sparkle. So, off goes the "wrong" dress and on comes your choice. It happens to be the very thing for her and you tell her that you just love the way she looks in it. Now that, my friend, is tact. You didn't hurt her feelings by suggesting the other dress, nor did you make her wish she had worn her own choice. It takes a little to be tactful.

Sometimes we are in a position in which we don't agree with something another person has suggested. It is easy to bring up your own point of view without trying to prove that she is wrong. She may or may not see that something else would work just as well. It is hard to say, "I'm right and you're wrong" without hurting the other person's feelings. That also, is tact.

One of our worst faults is saying something without thinking about how it will sound to the other person before we say it. I find that it is harder to take back something I have said in haste than it is not to say it at all. Of course, we don't always have the opportunity to think before we speak, but it is not hard to delay our opinions a second or two before we say a thing that could hurt somebody.

I am sure that if all of us will take a good look at ourselves, we will find that there is ample room for improvement. After we have pointed out our bad faults, it is easy to work to improve them.

Tact is not something that we are born with. It is something that we have to acquire. Tact is a sign of maturity, and as college girls, it wouldn't hurt us to acquire it. Let's all give our personalities a good spring cleaning!

Success - A Slow Process

Success is a funny thing. It seems that to some it comes with a snap of a finger, but to the vast majority it is a slow process. To some it means very little, but to the majority of us it means our future—our goal.

We must strive for success. It isn't passed around on silver platters; therefore, we cannot attain it by doing things the easiest way or by wanting only to "get by." The familiar "get-by" attitude is a sure-fire way to turn big plans into mere dreams. But these big plans can become realities if we believe in what we are doing and are willing to put forth our best efforts in order for them to materialize.

Oftentimes we may become discouraged, but we must realize that "stopping at third base adds no more to the score than striking out."

It takes a great deal of courage to begin working toward a goal that seems a million miles away. It takes a strong will to overcome all opposition as it looms ahead of us trying to smash our ambition to bits. But if we really want something, no opposition is big enough to prevent our having it.

To be successful, we must think success.

GSCW Students Attend
B. S. U. Spring Retreat

BY CAROLYN RAINHEY

A group of Baptist students from GSCW were privileged to attend the Spring Retreat for Georgia Baptist Students at Rock Eagle in Eatonton on April 20-22.

The theme was "Make Me Aware." It has been said that the business of Christian leaders is to extend and deepen our awareness, not simply to confirm what we already know from memory. Those hearing the very challenging speakers surely had a chance to deepen their awareness.

One of the speakers was Dr.

George K. Schweitzer, Associate Professor of Chemistry at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville, who spoke on "Science and Christianity." Another speaker was Anis Shorosh, a student at the New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary. He is from Jordan and plans to return to serve as a missionary to his people. Reverend Shorosh was an excellent speaker and challenger. Only twenty-four years old, he has already done so much with his Christian life for the sake of others.

Tumbling Club is the third skill club on campus; and it, too, is active fall and winter quarters only. Members will be seen in the gym performing the almost impossible stunts as they did in their tumbling show last quarter called "Tumbling Through The Ages."

Other sports we participated in include volleyball, basketball, soft ball, and badminton. Active this quarter are both softball and badminton. The Green team beat the Red in the color team softball tournament by the score of 15 to 10. It was quite an exciting game, however, as the Red team was ahead by five runs until the very last inning. Single badminton tournaments were scheduled to start this week. The tournaments are played in the big gym on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons. Spectators as well as participants join in all events making fun for everybody.

We hope that you enjoy the day here on campus and again extend to you a hearty welcome from the sports world!

The odor of the paint was bad for awhile, but I will have to admit that the fresh new look of the walls has made my home a more pleasant place. So as my apartment mate, Delaney, says, "Many thanks to the wielders of the brush who did such a fine job."

After The Play - The Applause

By Pat Hyder

In the past two issues of The Colonna, I have had my fun by making fun. A precedent, more or less, has been set up by the previous articles for any following ones. Because I dislike stereotypes, however, I have decided for once to take a serious attitude. At this point, an after-thought-provoking, and so real it is almost pathetic, but the majority of the student body came away from it thinking, "What a wonderful comedy!" Of all the

To those unfortunate few who have never felt it necessary to read between or beneath the lines of any written matter, I dedicate this article. If anyone cannot read between these lines, I suggest either a good optometrist, or a re-evaluation of her first grade teacher.

After six weeks of exhausting work, the cast and crew of the recent College Theatre production made their final bow and filed off-stage, accompanied by generous applause from the last-night audience. Mothers, teachers, and friends rushed backstage to congratulate daughters, students, and suitmates. Comments of profound understanding were heard everywhere, the main one being, "The play was wonderful!"

The most insulting thing that can be said to a speaker, a musician, or an actor is, "I enjoyed it very much." An artist doesn't usually care whether his performance was enjoyed or not. What he is most interested in is whether or not he is getting his idea across to the audience, and he wants to make sure that he is being heard, loud and clear!

"The Adding Machine," recently produced by College Theatre under the capable direction of Sam Smiley is a sterling example. This play is
